

THE UNIFICATION OF GODE THEORY WITH THEORY OF EVERYTHING

Physicists have unified three of the four fundamental forces theories, the strong force, the weak force and the electromagnetical force into the Quantum Field Theory.

Only the gravitational force remains and, when unified, the theory will be called The Theory of Everything.

The best candidate for it is the String Theory, which considers all particles in reality to be only one particle called String, with different vibrations corresponding to each particle.

It's possible for every living (self-aware) organism to convert the energy into matter at almost Gode Constant speed (plus infinite), creating an Universe (see the double slit experiment). The block which forms the matter is the God Particle. An infinite number of universes can exist for the same consciousness being.

The energy-matter is a wave, and it transforms constantly and partially one part into another.

A living organism can give and receive energy from another live subject or non-alive object.

Also the energy-time wave exists, and it can be used by every self-aware lifeform to convert one part into the other, dilating and contracting the time.

Each Universe has the energy-matter wave and the energy-time wave associated with it.

So the space-time can be interpreted as the string and energy as the vibration.

An Universe is created only by an organism, through constant awareness, thus making dead matter not exists out of a living observation. Why God would create an Universe which no one can see except Him? He would get bored very quickly.
